Subject: Japanese earthquake and tsunami...(A Cry for Help)

Mr. Joseph Bridgero, is my name. I believe you are a highly respected personality in your country. I have a financial transaction that will benefit the both of us. I am the operational manager with the safekeeping & deposits management section in charge of credit and foreign bills with [REDACTED] Company here in London, UK. I am writing in respect of a foreign customer who did business with our company for many years. Information just got to us that he has perished with his entire family in a major earthquake and tsunami in Japan. "May Their Gentle Souls Rest in Peace" Amen

My reason for contacting you is that, my investigation has confirmed that the two boxes contain money in total of $12 Million Dollars, {Twelve Million Dollars Only}. But our official deposit certificate indicates that the boxes are registered as; {Photographic Materials, & Personal Artifacts}. I do not want these two boxes to be claimed by our director. Since the late customer was a foreigner and not an indigene, it is not possible for me as a staff of the company to stand inline as next of kin to a foreigner. I want us both to collaborate and have you stand as the beneficiary enabling you to claim the consignments. I can move the boxes to your country or any other safe location in the world you may prefer.

At the conclusion of the deal, 50% of the fund will be for me, you will get 50% of the total amount, while we shall both bear responsibility to settle any unforeseen expenses that we may sustain during the whole process. This business is 1000% risk free of your involvement so do not entertain any fear as all modalities for the smooth completion of this deal have been properly put in place. I only need your collaboration. Please, for clarity and confidentiality sake, your reply should be directed to my private e-mail address: jbridgero@yahoo.com for better discussion.
